

Personal Conduct

This group follows a code of personal conduct which is based on guidelines set out in the AA Structure Handbook of Great Britain. Our meeting is a place of hope and healing. We are here to stop drinking and to stay stopped, there should be no personal agendas beyond that common goal.

We want everybody here to feel supported, respected, comfortable and safe, at all times.

To that end we strongly suggest that in general, and especially where new members are concerned, women help women and men help men. In addition, please do not contact newcomers or other members of this group outside of the meeting, or pass on anyone else's contact details, unless you have their express permission to do so.

In the case of face to face meetings, please be mindful to avoid unwanted and uninvited physical contact.

If you are in any doubt about what these boundaries mean, or if you feel that they are not being respected, we encourage you to speak with a group officer and, if appropriate, to raise the issue at a conscience meeting.

As ever, we are guided in all this by a loving Higher Power, and we look to our collective conscience for wisdom.

See pages 83 to 86 of the AA Structure Handbook for Great Britain for more.